3. Your Conduct

Treat everyone with respect and courtesy

- 3.1 You are expected to treat with courtesy and respect your colleagues, partners, customers, suppliers, shareholders and anyone else with whom you interact in your work.
- 3.2 We expect all our Employees and Workers:
- to practise and support the principle of equal employment opportunity regardless of race, religion, national origin, sex, age, physical disability, marital status, gender identity or sexual orientation;
 - to avoid discriminatory practices of any kind and make employment and career decisions strictly on the basis of individual ability, performance, experience and our requirements;

 - to not engage in any personal, physical or sexual harassment;
 - when gathering industry, market and competitive information, do so legally and ethically; and
 - to act in accordance with our universal values.

You must comply with all laws and regulations

- 3.3 You must comply with all laws and regulations relating to your business conduct and WTC’s operations. This includes being familiar with the duties and responsibilities applying to you under the laws relevant to WTC and in the context of your role at WTC.
- 3.4 Any activities carried out by yourself or WTC must comply with the laws of the jurisdiction they are conducted in.

Ensure you are aware of your legal obligations

- 3.5 Each Employee and Worker is required to ensure that they are aware of the legal obligations and requirements that impact their areas of responsibility. The laws that govern the Group’s business activities may be complex. You are encouraged to contact the General Counsel if you are unclear about laws or regulations relating to your work.

You must act ethically in your approach to business decisions.

- 3.6 In conducting your business relationships and negotiating and administering contracts, you are expected to be fair and reasonable. You must not behave in any way that is, or might be construed as being, oppressive, unconscionable, unethical, coercive or dishonest.

3.9 You must comply with our Code of Conduct, Market Disclosure and Communication Principles, and Risk Management Principles in addition to any other principles and policies adopted by the Board, which are all available on our intranet or on www.wisetechglobal.com.

4. Conflicts of Interest

Be aware of personal conflicts and ensure you report these

- 4.1 Effective and ethical business operations do require us to be aware of all the circumstances in which your interests or relationships may give rise to a real or perceived conflict of interest.
- 4.2 A work environment where all parties maintain a clear distinction between personal and business interactions is necessary for effective business operations. While there will be instances where those in Relationships are working together, or Relationships develop in the workplace, it is essential that such Relationships do not give rise to a conflict of interest (real or perceived).
- 4.3 Where a Personal Conflict arises or may arise, you must disclose the nature of this conflict to us to ensure that measures are put in place to protect parties affected by your Personal Conflict.

You must not make any payments or favors

4.4 You should not make any payments or payments in kind (including gifts and favours) to influence individuals to award business opportunities to us or make business decisions in our favour. See Section 4.9 in relation to acceptable business courtesies.

You must not offer or receive a bribe

- 4.5 WTC has a zero-tolerance approach to activities or actions which are, or could reasonably be construed as, bribery.
- 4.6 Bribery includes conduct involving the offering, promising, giving, accepting or soliciting of an advantage or reward as an inducement for action which is illegal, unethical or a breach of trust, or otherwise results in commercial, contractual, regulatory or personal advantage. Bribes can take a number of forms including gifts, loans, fees, services, or cash.
- 4.7 Receiving or offering bribes is strictly prohibited for all Employees and Workers. Australia, and many other countries in which WTC operates, are signatories to the OECD Convention

Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions. Many countries in which WTC operates have enacted legislation prohibiting the offering of anything of value to foreign public officials and which enable them to prosecute their citizens and corporations for the bribery of public officials in other countries. A contravention of anti-bribery legislation has serious consequences, such as imprisonment or fines. Bribery can also cause significant reputational damage to the business.

- 4.8 You are expected to report any suspected bribery. If you suspect someone of bribery, refer to the Whistleblowing Policy and/or someone from WTC's Legal Team.

You can give and accept business courtesies up to a limit of AUD $500 and record all courtesies

- 4.9 You must be aware that the offer or acceptance of a gift may create an obligation or be construed or used by others to allege favouritism, discrimination, collusion or similarly unacceptable practices. You must not give, seek or accept in connection with our business any gifts, meals, refreshments and entertainment which goes beyond common courtesies associated with ordinary and proper course of business. You must avoid everything that could reasonably be construed as a bribe or improper inducement. Any gift, entertainment or other personal favour or assistance given or received which has a value in excess of AUD $500 must be approved in advance by WTC. If approved, information supplied will be entered into the gifts register maintained by the Company Secretary. You must decline a gift that is linked to a current or potential tendering or procurement process.

You must not pursue or take personal advantage of business opportunities that arise as part of your position or involve the use of our property or information

- 4.10 You must not, without obtaining the written approval of the CEO, CFO or General Counsel, pursue or take personal advantage of any business opportunities which arise as a result of your position within WTC or the use of WTC's property or information.

Director Conflicts

- 4.11 Directors of WTC will be guided by its constitution and will ensure that they abide by the law governing conflicts of interest in the relevant jurisdiction, together with our principles and guidelines. Where there is doubt, the matter should be raised with a director or company secretary of the relevant subsidiary company, the Chair of the Audit & Risk Committee or the Chair of the Board as relevant.

Personal Conflicts

- 4.12 In addition to the aforementioned conflicts of interest, specific types of conflicts that may arise in your capacity as a team member, including if you have dealings with your relatives or other persons with whom you maintain a special or personal relationship (Relationship).
- 4.13 Relationships in the workplace may give rise to certain risks which the Company wishes to avoid, including:
- a team member, in the course of a Relationship, may make business decisions which run contrary to the Company's interests;
 - business decisions based on personal favouritism may undermine our reputation internally and externally and may give rise to claims of unlawful discrimination or unfair conduct;

- where a team member may disclose or use confidential or other sensitive business information to assist a person that they are in a Relationship with; and
- where a team member in a Relationship may impact on relationships with others or give rise to a real or perceived state of unfairness to peers or colleagues.

4.14 In the context of this Code, a 'Relationship' can include, but is not limited to:

- members of your immediate and extended family (including spouses, de-facto partners, siblings, children, stepchildren, dependants, parents, guardians, grandparents, siblings of parents, cousins, etc);
- those you share a close personal relationship beyond normal working relations (including partners, spouses, persons with whom you live, persons with whom you are having a romantic and/ or sexual relationship, and longstanding personal friends);
- those you are participating in any business venture outside of your work for the Company (e.g., a business partner or investor);
- those (including companies or other entities) to whom you are indebted, or are indebted to you);
- anyone referred to you by any of the above persons:
- any company, trust, partnership, business, or other entity in which you or any of the above persons (to your knowledge) have a significant financial interest. A significant financial interest will usually not include ownership of publicly traded shares on a recognised securities exchange for investment purposes, provided that such shares do not exceed 5% of the company's issued share capital; and
- any other person or entity who, due to some special relationship with you which is unrelated to the business of the Company, may (or may be perceived to) impair or unduly influence your ability to make fair, impartial, or professional business decisions in the best interests of the Company.

4.15 This is not an exhaustive list because the nature of Relationships that could present a real or perceived conflict is vast, so if a team member is in doubt about whether a Relationship may give rise to a conflict, they should seek guidance from their People Leader or People Operations.

4.16 If you do have a Relationship with another team member, particularly if you or the other party to the Relationship is a People Leader or other member of the management of the Company, that may give rise to a real or perceived conflict of interest, you are required to disclose this to People Operations via the form available on The Source.

4.17 People Operations will work with the relevant team members and/or People Leader(s) to assess the potential impact of the real or perceived conflict of interest from a business operations perspective that may exist as a result of the Relationship. Where the assessment is made that the Relationship does not give rise to a real or perceived conflict of interest, the team member will be notified, however if there are any changes in the specific circumstances of the Relationship, including changes from a business operations perspective, the relevant team member will be required to notify their People Leader or People Operations of the change in circumstances.

4.18 In the event that the disclosure of a Relationship does present conflict of interest concerns from a business operations perspective, People Operations will work with the relevant team members and/or People Leader(s) to implement transparent measures to address any such conflict of interest.

- 4.19 Failure to cooperate with the reasonable direction of the Company to resolve a real or perceived conflict of interest caused by a Relationship, may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination.

5. Privacy and Confidentiality

- 5.1 You must ensure that you do not disclose any Confidential Information or Proprietary Information to any third party or other Employee or Worker who does not have a valid business reason for receiving that information.
